

DEFIANT DRIVER TAUGHT A LESSON BY POLICEWOMAN

Refused to Obey Orders and Is Dragged From Wagon to Court and Fined.

Lieut. Eva Mitchell was having a busy time yesterday morning between 9 and 10, directing traffic at 41st Street and Third Avenue. Wearing a long raincoat and her blond hair tucked under a small red hat—her uniforms have not yet been delivered to all the reserve policewomen—Mrs. Mitchell was no inconspicuous figure as she stood wig-wagging and, when necessary, blowing her whistle.

Yet Frank Annunzio of No. 249 Morris Avenue, Bronx, a peddler, driving a one-horse open delivery wagon, said he could not see her signal. He was pulled from his seat by a bystander, and later fined $2 in the Traffic Court for violating traffic regulations.

Five children being piloted across the street were almost run down as Annunzio, driving north on Third Avenue, emerged from the line of stationary vehicles and bore down upon them, Mrs. Mitchell told a reporter.

"Get back there, will you?" said Mrs. Mitchell when her first warning was not heeded.

"I won't," said the driver.

"Then you get down off that wagon and come with me," Lieut. Mitchell commanded.

A young man standing in front of a one-time saloon on the corner rushed to the assistance of the policewoman and pulled Annunzio from his seat.

Mrs. Mitchell, her clothes covered with mud from the wagon wheels, grasped him firmly by the lapel of his coat and started toward the East 41st Street Station House.

By this time a crowd had collected. Not for an instant did Mrs. Mitchell relax her hold. In vain Annunzio whimpered.

"I didn't do it."

"You know very well you did it," was the relentless reply.

Sgt. Keller made out the necessary papers and Lieut. Mitchell accompanied her prisoner to court. Before Magistrate Levine, Annunzio admitted he had failed to stop when he saw the policewoman's signal. He was then fined $2 and allowed to go back to his wagon. This had been taken in charge by the men to whom he was delivering goods.

ACCUSE R. G. MORSE OF PLOT

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—Injunction proceedings to prevent Robert G. Morse of Boston, a stockholder in the Big Sandy Company, dealers in coal lands, from disposing of stock in the concern, which is capitalized at $5,000,000, were set for trial in Federal Court here to-day by Charles E. Heller of New York, former General Manager of the concern.

The suit names as co-defendants Augustus P. Loring, Jr. of Beverly and Edward O. Achorn, Jr. of Boston, executives of the will of the late Robert G. Morse, father of Robert G. Morse. The defendant Morse is accused of conspiring with others to deprive the Big Sandy Company of its property.

WOULD CENTRALIZE CITY HOSPITAL WORK

Academy of Medicine Committee
Discusses More Efficient Measures.

The Public Health Committee of the New York Academy of Medicine recommended last night that a central bureau be established in New York to co-ordinate the work of the various hospitals of the city, both private and municipal. A report of the committee read by Secretary E. H. Lewinshilb.

The report shows that there are 32,000 beds available in hospitals of the city, which are sufficient to meet present demands. The average utilization of beds at present is only 70 per cent of the capacity, and the great need is for accommodations for convalescent and chronic cases, it was shown. Training schools attached to hospitals should be enlarged, the report continued, so that a larger percentage of the work might be done by pupils rather than by trained nurses.

Hospitals in the city are spending $25,000,000 for maintenance, the Secretary said, and less than $20,000 of the $20,000,000 spent for supplies is bought through the hospitals' co-operative agencies. This would be one task for the Central Hospital Bureau to take over, he stated, as well as the proper distribution of patients among the various hospitals.

CO-RECEIVER FOR WILLYS.

Court Names James Kearney to Serve With Voorhees.

Federal Judge Bodine in Newark named James Kearney, editor of the Sunday Advertiser of Trenton, N. J., yesterday to serve with Clifford L. Voorhees of New Brunswick as co-receiver of the New Jersey assets of the Willys Corporation.

His decision to name Kearney was a victory for the merchandise and construction creditors and others who have been fighting to keep the New York and New Jersey assets of the company from being administered by Clement O. Miniger and Frank P. Keniston, the two receivers originally named for the company in the Ohio courts.

Judge Bodine heard counsel for the various interests before making the appointment. Col. James M. Hart, representing many creditors, said John N. Willys, joining with the Ohio Trust and Savings Bank, which brought the receivership action, has tried to control the receivership.
